FOUND A CRACK.

Gas Expert Makes a Discovery at the Newport House,

The determination of James Newbort to remain in his quaking house on North Cap-Ital avenue come what may, has decidedly changed since the violent shocks of Saturday night and now it is almost impossible to find a man who can be hired to remain in the house over night. Yesterday was the longed-for opportunity for people who had not yet visited the house because of their employment and thousands flocked to the place afoot and in vehicles. A vacant lot lies on each side of the house and these lots were filled with the curious, resembling mobs. Police were stationed around the house to prevent souvenir flends from demolishing the house and carrying away the pieces.

During the day evidences were found of a fresh disturbance, several cracks appearing in the cellar, while the plastering on the front room had broken, some falling on the floor. Mr. Hoffman, an experienced gas operator, made a careful investigation of the new cracks in the cellar, and finally traced them to a point 1,000 feet distant, terminating in the bed of Fall creek. He said the indications pointed to a break in the Trenns pointed to a break in the Trenton rock and an escape of natural gas. He expects further outbreaks. Mr. Huffman's report has disturbed the peace of mind of many of the neighboring property owners through whose ground the cracks led. through whose ground the cracks led.

The house was practically unguarded last night, as Mr. Newport and his family are aying with relatives on Pratt street. in front of the house, waiting for further lesmic demonstrations.

A conductor on the North Illinois line said that his car was crowded every trip by people who wanted to see the haunted bouse. Eighteenth street was a regular stopping place for the Illinois street cars yesterday, the conductors calling out, "here's where you get off to see the haunted house." The house stands in a terraced yard by itself, as there are vacant lots on both sides of it. For the greater part of the day these lots were filled with resords when presents at the chiefment of the day these lots were filled with resords. people, who peered at the chimneys, expecting to see the house rock and the bricks come tumbling down, but nothing of the kind occurred. W. Scott Moore, of the Board of Public Works, and C. S. Darnell were among the visitors who were admitted to the interior of the house. So far as can be learned no one has been able to solve Saloon Keeper Gives the Information That Causes His Arrest.

Harry Pert, a Hebrew saloon keeper at 800 South Illinois street, was arrested yesterday afternoon for violating Section 3 of the Nicholson law in allowing persons in his saloon on Sunday. His arrest came about in a peculiar way. During the afternoon William Rittenbock, living on Russell avenue, accompanied by Pert, drove to the police station. Rittenbock told the police that he had been to Pert's saloon during the afternoon and then had driven to a saloon in West Indianapolis where, he laims, his pocket was picket of $14. He discovered his loss and then drove back to Pert's saloon and asked him to accompany him to the police station that he might re-port the robbery. Pert's surprise came when the police told him that by his own admission he was guilty of violating the liquer law and he was arrested. He gave

About 2 o'clock yesterday morning Sergeants Lowe and Kruger raided a room at 509 South West street and captured twentyfive young men apparently in the act of gambling. The floor of the room was threw dice. A number of card tables, packs of cards and dice were secured. The prisoners claimed the room was simply a clubroom, but the police have information that the room is run by Ed Givens and is a gambling room started only a week ago. Givens was arrested. A COMPLETE RESUME OF POLITICS IN INDIANA.

Democrats Floundering in Sea of Blunders, While Republicans Are Pulling Together.

If Indiana does not go for McKinley the men who are accustomed to prognosticate results in this State from both sides of the political fence will miss their calculations very largely. The last week has witnessed a series of fatal blunders on the part of the silver managers and has seen the beginning of the fiercest onset that any political party has ever had to withstand in the State. For the closing weeks of the campaign the working force of the Republican organization has been doubled and while the Bryan State committee is still working largely in the dark, the Republicans are able to see their way clear to almost certain success of large proportions. A few newspaper men sent here from their home offices in the East have been writing back that both State committees were floundering about in the dark without real knowledge of the situation. Politicians who understand that much of the campaign funds have been collected in the East and know how difficult it has been to convince Eastern interests that those middle Western State are not as safe as their own commonwealth, will appreciate why the Republican managers have hesitated to unbosom themselves to men they never met before, who might use the information to the serious destruction of their work. The Republicans have the situation weil in man those who are with them, those who are against them and those who are undecided as well as why they are undecided. correctness what they ought to be able to do. No political organization was ever it is not likely that any point will be neglected between now and the election. In the cities of the State they are having demonstrations that exceed in magnitude there is not a township in the whole 1,014 that will not have at least one Republican rally during the next two weeks. The sound-money forces have started in upon the home stretch with a vigor that is simply astounding.

The Republicans have such men as Gen. Harrison, Thomas B. Reed, ex-Governor Foraker and Generals Sickles, Alger, Howard and Sigel, touring the States, while the sound-money Democrats have John P. Irish, ex-Governor Flower, Carl Schurz, Dr. William Everett, W. D. Bynum and others of scarcely less magnitude appealing to their old party associates to come to the rescue of the flag. There will be no cessa-tion of this fire all along the line until election day and all that the silver forces have in sight to offset this is another two days of Bryan in the State. The blunders of their own leaders and managers, however, have proved more deforces than this attack from the opposing element. It is difficult to estimate the efinternal dissensions brought about by the peculiar deal with the Populists whereby the candidates on the silver

Democratic State ticket were crucified and their race made hopeless. It was with great difficulty that a general disruption of the State ticket was prevented. The candidates who have thus far borne the entire burden of expenses connected with the campaign of Indiana will contribute no further. They themselves estimate, that the deal by which five straight Populists were put upon the State Democratic electoral ticket has driven from the ticket not less than ten thousand old-line Democrats who were originally for sound money, but have been trying hard to work in harmony with the party in its new crusade. Prominent as representative of this element are S. P. Sheerin, for many years secretary of the national committee; Frank B. Burke, United States district attorney, and Crawford Fairbanks, member of Chair man Martin's executive committee. Another serious blunder was made Governor Matthews in ruling that sound-money Democrats could not use the designation "National Democratic" and that their nominations must go on the ballot as "The Gold-standard Ticket." The State candidates had reasons to believe that most of the sound-money Democrats would not a for them but this unfair treat would vote for them, but this unfair treatment has put them in such a mood that their leaders estimate that not 2 per cent of them will vote the State ticket. The silver forces are thus left as a disorganized mob, with hardly a leader outside of Turple and Matthews, who was hardly known outsid of his own county a few years ago. Arrayed against them solid business interests of the State, fully 75 per cent, of the wage earners, the practically solid soldier vote, the schoolteachers and nine-tenths of the professional men, 80 per cent, of the large German vote in Indiana, the almost solid influence of the clergies, including the Roman Catholic hierarchy, led by the Rt. Rev. Francis S. Chatard, bishop of Vincennes, and for many years president of the American College at Rome. With all these powerful elements against them working enthusiastically, sympathetically and intelligently in the interests of sound money, it is difficult to see where the silver men can find any ground whatever upon which to base a hope of winning the State. One of the "Coerced."

At a certain boarding house on East Ohio street the boarders are not all of one way of thinking politically, and some lively discussions result in consequence. On Saturday evening last a stranger made his appearance and engaged room and board. At the supper table he took part freely in the political conversation that was going on, and stated that he was in the employ of a certain firm of contractors that is now engaged in the erection of a build-ing on Washington street. He said the firm had given notice to its employes that they would be discharged unless they votea for McKinley, upon which a considerable number of them, himself included, prompt ly threw down their tools, refusing to be thus coerced into voting against their prin-ciples. The statement was doubted by a gentleman present, who took the man's name and the name of the firm he said he was working for. Subsequent investigation proved the statement to be entirely without foundation, as was expected. Sunday morning the new boarder failed to put in an appearance at breakfast, and shortly after it was discovered that he was not in the house. He had left with his effects, and some other Some of the boarders are waiting impatiently to charge him with his false-hood, and the landlady is mourning the loss of some of her goods.

Nitroglycerin in Oil Well Refuses to Be Exploded.

CHARGE STILL HANGS.

The character of the oil well on the Bradley farm, near Broad Ripple, is still unsettled, for the reason that the charge of nitroglycerin which was put in it for the purpose of "shooting" it has not yet been exploded. A large percussion cap was dropped on a cylinder upon the charge of glycerin. The cap exploded, but it did not explode the glycerin. The people who have the work in hand are not discouraged. They are confident that the gylcerin will be exploded, and will make the attempt today. The well is owned by two or three men who are interested in the Keystone Company. Mr. Harry Gates is one of them.

MEETING TO-NIGHT

He said last night that he did not expect that the well would be a large one and he rather hoped that shooting it would develop it into a gas well. The Keystone Com-pany, he said, intends to sink several wells next month. Gas would be more welcome than oil, he said.

G. M. LAMBERTSON, FROM THE HOME OF ERYAN, TO BE AT ENGLISH'S.

A Fluent Speaker Who Will Devote Some Time to Mr. Bryan's Personal Characteristics.

There will be a big Republican meeting in English's Opera House to-night and an address on the financial condition of the country and the present political issues will be delivered by G. M. Lambertson, of Lincoln, Neb., the home of W. J. Bryan. Mr. Thus they are able to calculate with fair | Lambertson is a native Hoosier, having been born and reared in Franklin, John son county. He has twice held the office in finer trim than theirs in Indiana and of district attorney in the State of Kansas the second time having been appointed by General Harrison. During the administration of General Harrison Mr. Lambertson was also first Assistant Secretary of the anything Indiana has known before and Treasury. He is personally well acquainted with Mr. Bryan and will speak on the characteristics of the Popocratic nomine for President.

Mr. Lambertson has a reputation as ar orator of no little ability and as his position as Assistant Secretary of the Treasury has brought him into more intimate contact with that department than even the Treasurer, he is well informed on the finances of the government and will touch on the different points at issue from a standpoint of personal knowledge that will make his address one of unusual interest. The speaker will be escorted from the Denison House to English's Opera House by the Marion Escort Club, in full uniform. Music will be furnished by the Union Band and the event will be one of enthusiasm. The meeting will be presided over by William F. Berry, a machinist at the Atlas engine works. The Marion Glee Club will sing several new songs.

THE SOLDIERS' MEETING.

More Preparations for Their Big Rally, Friday, Oct. 30. The local Soldiers' and Sailors' and Sons of Soldiers and Sailors' McKinley and Hobart Club met yesterday afternoon in the rooms of the Citizens' Sound-money League, at Nos. 18 and 20 North Meridian street. There was a large attendance of members. The report of the secretary showed that during the last week over 5,000 names have been added to the roll in this State, making a membership of over 40,000. The arrangements for the rally to be held here Friday night, Oct. 30, were discussed and further details announced. The indications now are that this will be the largest gathering of veterans in this city since the last National Encampment in 1893. The following committees were announced: On Place of Meeting-J. E. Haskell and W. H. Schmidt. Finance-J. W. Fesler, Daniel L. Brown and R. O. Hawkins.

Brown and A. F. Springstein.

The following resolution was offered by Thomas Hanna and was adopted by a rising vote:

"Whereas, Comrades Russell A. Alger, Daniel E. Sickles, Otis O. Howard, James Tanner, Jack Burst, Thomas J. Stewart and George A. Marden have been for the last month advocating the cause of good government and of our flag, and urging upon the people in thirteen States and from 220 platforms to vote for the flag, for William McKinley for President and for all his latform represents, and also in Indiana, pleading with the people to stand by our comrades James A. Mount for Governor and W. S. Haggard for Lieutenant Governor; that the people should vote for a soldier for President, for Governor and for Lieutenant Governor, and that 'a nation of of the last war would have poor soldiers in the next; therefore, be it Resolved, That we hereby extend to each and all our comrades aforesaid our most sincere thanks and gratitude for the sacrifices they have made, for the good they ive done for honest money, for our comrades, for our country and our flag.

"Resolved, That a copy of these resoluons be sent to each of our said comrades." The death of comrade Grotendyke, of North Liberty street, was announced and the members then sang "There'll be Soldiers There."

This concluded the business meeting, and the rest of the time was spent in listening to members talk and in singing old war reminded the veterans of times gone by. J. M. Shepherd, who has been a Democrat for many years, and who has not voted for a Republican since 1865, spoke for nearly fifteen minutes, telling why he would vote for McKinley. He said that he could not vote for a policy that would increase the price of everything except wages. He thought the man who is working for wages needed a little protection along that line, and he could not bring himself to the point of voting away one-half the purchasing power of wages without making any provision for increasing the amount of wages. Another potent reason with him was the fact that thirty years ago he was with the veterans in a good cause, and now that they are rallying to again strike a blow to save the country from destruction Daniel L. Brown spoke encouragement from Kentucky. He has just returned from a trip in that State and reported that the outlook is very bright for McKiniey to carry it. This was encouraging ry it. This was encouraging, and the news I. S. Gordon, president of the Citizens' Sound-money League, spoke for a few minutes. He discussed the issues from the view of a business man. He showed what change as the adoption of free coinage of There will be another meeting of the camp next Wednesday night at the same place. Smiley N. Chambers will speak. There will also be a meeting the same night in Spencer's Opera House in West Indian-apolis of the West Indianapolis camp. Daniel L. Brown will speak. He says he will let himself loose at this meeting, and the veterans know that when he does so he is a very entertaining speaker.

HELP LOCOMOTIVES

GEORGE C. PYLE'S SCHEME TO IN-CREASE THEIR TRACTION.

Large Magnets Will Draw the Engine Downward and Make It Stick to the Rails. George C. Pyle, of this city, has invented and patented a magnetic device to increase the traction power of the locomotive. Harry Miller, general superintendent of the Vandalia; M. W. Mansfield, superintendent of the Indianapolis & Vincennes, and . number of other railway officials and mechanics have examined the invention and express the opinion that it has much merit. The device consists of powerful magnets, one to each driving wheel, secured to the frame of the locomotive, with the poles of each magnet straddling the lower part of the wheel and terminating about one-quarter of an inch above the rail, the rail beneath the poles forming the armature. When the current is turned on each magnet exerts a powerful pull on the frame toward the rail, and the results are exactly the same as though two or three thousand pounds were placed on top of the wheel, making it possible to get ten to twenty thousand pounds greater adhesion or traction power on any locomotive, sufficient to draw from three to five more loaded cars, thus increasing its earning power from $1,000 to $2,000. The use of sand will be limited, thereby avoiding its evil effects, and a lighter locomotive will be able to draw the load of a heavier one, thus making it easier on the roadbed and the bridges. Another great advantage to be derived by its use is the fact that it will be almost impossible for the drivers of a locomotive running at a high rate of speed to leave the track. The device is quite ingenious and will attract much attention. When applied its earning power will begin at once, and this is the kind of improvements which the managers of rail roads are looking for. The device can be applied to any locomotive, and as it is free from wearing parts there is nothing about it to break down. Mr. Pyle has at his shop a small working model, with all parts made in proper proportion, and the us the magnets shows an increase in both adhesion and traction power of over 20 per Prospect of a Cold Winter. George Pitts, one of the oldest ice dealers in the city and one whose judgment in predicts a hard winter. One of the reasons he assigns is that so much rain has fallen in the last few months all over the country paratively mild ones for Indiana. He says, however, that cold winters have lost much of their interest to ice dealers, with six artificial ice plants here and artificial ice plants in near-by towns. There is no oc-casion for anxiety, he says, regarding the natural ice crop, for better ice for most purposes can be manufactured at less cost than harvesting ice. He says the streams from which ice has been cut for years have become so polluted that most of the ice harvested in the canal and pends near by is not fit for use except in the cellars of the cold-storage houses. Artificial ice looks so much more pure that housewives are beginning to want no other for that reason He thought if a hard winter came on and there was a big crop of ice the brewerles Police Capture Twenty-Five Men in the Act of Gambling.
